

Are American's really foolish or just made to look so by media and candidates?

The 2012 presidential election campaign is the most vivid mirror of the state of American society and its institutions. Never in the history of American elections were so many lies told to so many people by candidates and their surrogates. Politicians and so called pundits who have no shame and clearly are not being held accountable for substantiating their wild promises and factually false accusations of their opponents.

Anyone who knows anything about the global geopolitical and economical state of the world will not for the life of them believe that Romney's so called 5 point plan will create 12 million jobs, balance the budget, reduce the debt, grow GDP to 4%, increase defense spending and reduce tax burden on the so called "middle class" but not on the ultra rich. My grand daughter is 6 years old and according to her and anyone who looked at it half way seriously says: "this is a joke - right?". Yet day-in and day-out the American media and the politicians keep repeating it as if it was true, attainable or even plausible. Stop! this has to do with arithmetic as the chief explainer already explained: It ain't there! It is as true as Paul Ryan's 2:50 marathon. But no, here is the proof: "trust me" which in political speak basically means f@#K you. Obama stole $716 billion from Medicare to pay for Obamacare - True? Not according to FactCheck.Org as are many other so called "facts" that are being thrown around by both campaigns - check it out. If you are a Democrat or a Republican- bless you. Ideology is one virtue worth keeping. But if you pretend to be "independent" or "undecided" (what seems to be your problem?) if you pretend to be an "informed" voter how can you tolerate this crap? Romney claims to have business experience, hence he understands how to fix America. America is not a business, but even if it were, when a business shows most if not all of its key performance indicators on the rise the worst you can do is to completely change its vision, mission and strategy on a hope and a prayer.

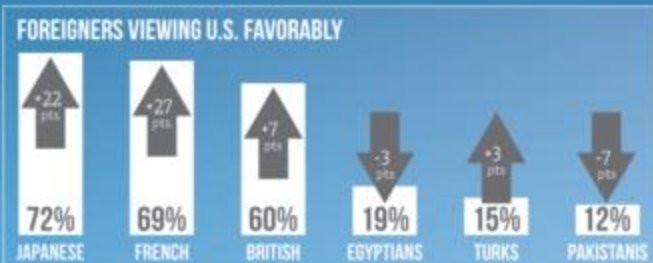

OBAMA'S NUMBERS

FACTCHECK.ORG
A PRODUCT OF THE AMERICAN PUBLIC POLICY CENTER

10/8/2012

IRAQ	AFGHANISTAN
263	1,497

CAUTION: NO SINGLE NUMBER CAN TELL THE WHOLE STORY

For full details: <http://factcheck.org/2012/10/obamas-numbers>

There are good reasons why America has declined from its own perception of being number 1 in anything and everything. Just painting a broken house in white, blue and red will not stop the foundation from rotting. America is the land of the white, the black, the brown the yellow, the poor, the struggling “middle” but as of recently it has been owned by the rich and famous. Wake up and smell the coffee: the game is rigged.

Corporate CEOs including the “Queen of Versailles” are sending letters to employees saying that a second Obama term may cost them their jobs and justifying it as “not illegal” political speech. How about immoral? . I had a bad dream last night: Romney’s first day in office when he declares a trade war on China calling them currency manipulators and cheaters. The new leadership in China that is about to be installed at the same time already have the answer: “Hey Romney, where are the couple of trillions you owe me?”

You think I am biased: Vote Obama.